THE QUESTIONS NOBODY ANSWERS

Recruiting is full of questions and not enough answers.

- Which colleges are even realistic?
  There are 438 college programs, men's and women's, and no easy way to compare them.
- Is anyone actually looking at my wrestler?
  Coaches evaluate wrestlers weekly. Families rarely know who.
- When can we contact a coach, and what do we say?
  The rules, the timing and the first email are never explained.
- What will college actually cost us?
  Scholarships, aid and out-of-pocket cost differ at every school.
- Who is keeping track of all of this?
  No one place holds the list, the plan and the deadlines.

INTRODUCING RECRUITWRESTLERS

The whole recruiting process, in one place.

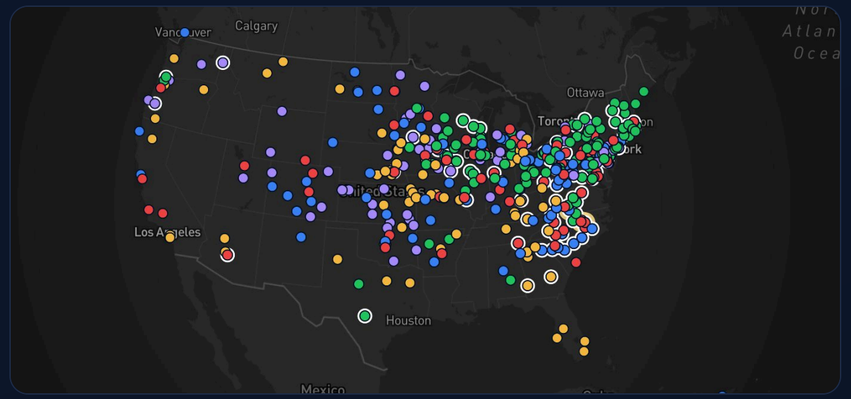

Boys and girls, 8th grade to signing. Your wrestler's results, the colleges, and who is looking. 122 college coaches are already on it.

ALL 438 PROGRAMS

Shown with an example family

STEP ONE · THE RECORD

It starts with what your wrestler has already done

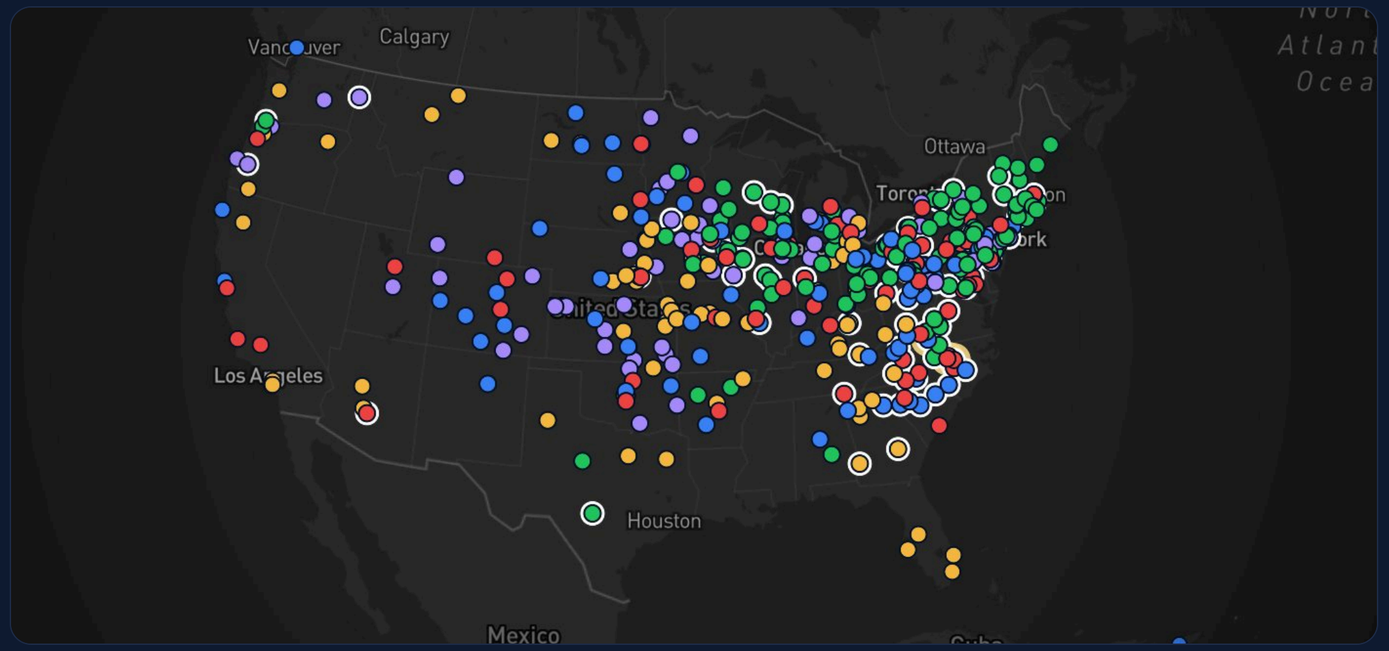

Brieon Mayfield · Jack Britt · class of 2027 · committed to NC State

STEP TWO · THE COLLEGES

438 college programs, at every level.

Division I · Division II · Division III · NAIA · Junior college

Start the list wide.

Division I is 80 of them, and 200 have a women's team. Most wrestlers who keep competing do it outside Division I, at schools most families have never heard of.

Fit, worked out.

Academic and athletic fit from your wrestler's own GPA, test scores and results — not a brochure.

Cost, in full.

The yearly number for your family, in-state or out, after aid.

STEP THREE · THE VISIBILITY

See which colleges have looked at your wrestler

A real profile: 22 college programs since January

The schools, by name. NC State. Belmont Abbey. Nebraska Wesleyan. And the date each one looked.

It updates on its own. Every time a coach opens the profile.

Free shows the number. A subscription shows the names.

You don’t have to keep checking. We email you the week a college looks. In North Carolina it hits your phone too.

And they keep hearing about him. A coach who stars your wrestler gets told every time your wrestler competes.

STEP FOUR · THE PLAN

The plan updates itself. You just take the next step.

We keep the rules straight. Who can call and when, by division and by class, with the source for every date.

Today's moves, not a to-do list. Three colleges, three actions, one of them because a coach looked.
